MR. CLEVELAND should have had a chance to be here. Then it would have been a fair shake.

It is wrong to delude Goverr r Hill with the hope of getting the delegation to the next Democratic Convention Mr. Cleveland has a cinch on it.

MARRIAGE with deceased wife's sister is again disturbing the Pittsburgh Synod labor of foreign countries. of the United Presbyterian Church. In England such marriage is not lawful. In this country it is common.

NELSON'S remarkable performance of a half mile in 1:03 not only breaks the industry and home prosperity and inrecord, but raises once more the hones ducing his neighbors to east their votes of those enthusiasts who expect the for this honest and fearless supporter American trotter to do his mile in two of American interests.

THE "force bill" bothers Governor Hill and it bothers him about the same in every speech he makes. Governor Hill desires to be President. This he could never hope to be with a free ballot and a fair count in the Solid South. Nobody understands this better than Gov ernor Hill. Hence his fine frenzy.

"X. Y. Z."-The punishment of mur derers is a matter of State administration to the brother or sister who is leading in prayer. To the unaccustomed this cordial endorsement would be decidedly disconcerting, but those who are used to it do not seem to be disturbed in the least. Some, indeed, hold it to be an inspiration, something skin to the applause which greets an acceptable platform speaker. These responses used to be more common than they are now, and in this day they are heard more in rural regions than in cities, where congregations impose upon themselves greater restraints. A pertinent story is told of Mr. D. L. Moody, the evangelist

While Mr. Moody was speaking at a revival meeting a good brother re sponded, "That's true!" "True!" replied the evangelist. "Of course it's true. What do you suppose I'm telling here to-night, lies?" The good brother took the hint and for the remainder of of the evening was quiet. It may be inferred that nobody else took upon him. self to give Mr. Moody's remarks a similar indorsement.

The propriety of the informal response may be left to each congregation to de-termine for itself, but Mr. Moody does not seem to place s high value on its usefulness in his meetings.

The Wetzel County Fraud. After waiting to consult with the Democratic managers the Register objects to the INTELLIGENCER's reference to the crime against the ballot committed in Wetzel county in the interest of John O. Pendleton. The objection is to "the extreme sea" of the fraud, which renders the story of it "unfit for duty."

This is not the first time that course for a criminal has pleaded the statute of limitations in his behalf. The men who did the Wetzel county job would be more grateful to the Register if it could induce the Circuit Court of Wetzel county to admit that as a good plea, for they are by no means over the dread o

Sick Hendache. Mr. Pendleton will hardly feel under obligation to the Register, for though the tools may never be convicted, Pendleton is already under conviction for his eager willingness to profit by what was done for him in the vault of the Wetzel county court house.

The INTELLIGENCER begs to assure the Register that the case would be no better for anybody concerned if the story were twice as old as it is. It is not the flight of time, but the enormity of the offense which has made and continues to make an impression on the public mind.

Nor is the impression confined to Republicans. There are Democrats who respect themselves enough, and have bim in an intelligent defense of a protective tariff, both orally and with his pen.

As a legislator his ability is of the first order. While he wasin the Legislature he was the acknowledged leader in the House. His influence was stamped upon legislation of importance. Among other notable enactments was that of the soldiers bounty law, under which indigent soldiers draw a stipulated amount from the State. This alone should entitle him to the everlasting gratitude of every true and loyal comrade, irrespective of political affiliations. He also distinguished himself as an able advecate of important mining interests, affecting alike the employer and the employed. Every miner should stand by this his sterling friend and show his friendship by casting hallot for him at the polls.

Colonel Poorman has always been a care supposed that business or professional men would not understand that the government never reduced the price of stamps, no matter how large estern that the government never reduced the price of stamps, no matter how large of stam ballot for him at the polls.

Colonel Poorman has always been a laboring man, carning his bread by the laboring man, carning his bread by the stamp window that necessitated their ranging in Indian file. Everyone wanted atamps and were terribly bored when plar with the honest, the industrious, the common people; that class of people who will undoubtedly rally to his support with a strength that will be refreshing, that will carry him, we trust, to a triumphant election.

The farmer has every reason to re member with gratitude the Colonel's faithfulness to these protective principles which establish a ready home market at remunerative prices and save him from competing with the pauper

Let every Republican show his friend ship for this tried, loyal and experienced legislator by exerting his personal influence in the cause of honest

Bad for the American Toller. Governor Hill, like others of his party, try to delude themselves into the belief that the American consumer and the American producer are two entirely different persons; that if the consumer can buy at the very lowest price the world offers, the country will be presperous; that the producer may make the best he can of the situation. Apply this heartless doctrine to Wheel ing, and what becomes of her thousands within the several States. The United States Government looks to it within its own exclusive jurisdiction. Col. C. L. Poorman.

Colorel Poorman, the candidate for Congress in the Seventeenth Ohio district on the Republican ticket, is peculiarly well qualified by a long service in the party to advocate its principles. His experience has been wide and varied. He stands to-day abreast of the best adherents of protection to American industry. No man in the State has excelled him in an intelligent defense of a protection to sailly and with his discoverage of the control of this guillible quality of business men and customers, that the Louisiana Lottery found so many suckers here, and that the Adams Express Company money to New Orleans and Washington. The announcement in last night's Star meant just what it said, but the editor was proposed that it would only "take in" a dichasses and conditions of citizens. It was not supposed that business or protection to American industry. No man in the State has excelled him in an intelligent defense of a protection to American industry. ranging in Indian file. Everyone wanted stamps and were terribly bored when they saw the error of wit. One solid business man went back into the office and asked for $5.worth. He was given five sheets of fifty each. "Here, here, this won't do," said he, "I ought to have nearly 3,000 two-cent stamps for $5." "Oh, no," said Assistant Postmaster Wallace; "don't you know that the Government never reduces its prices in job lots?" But even then he could not understand it until one cent and a silver quarter were laid out in front of him. quarter were laid out in front of him. He took 250 stamps, smiled sheepishly

A lawyer whose grasping inclinations are well known also asked for about $2 worth if the supply were not exhausted. The supply was still thero and he got 100. While he was walting to get change out of a $10 bill he learned the meaning of the notice. He saw what it was, took his stamps and made some witty remark about people getting fooled.

Two school teachers called at the window to assist in getting a corner on postage stamps. After the matter had been explained to them they had a consultation and concluded that their correspondence would not at present demand the laying in of a large supply. They will now endeavor to teach their publis the use and meaning of synonymous words.
